

Commitment to You

Tracey Billham is committed to maintaining the online privacy of existing and future clients. Tracey Billham may use the information collected from you for professional use and to help understand more about how the site tracey@traceybillham.co.uk is interacted with and can be improved.

Information Gathered from You

The site may collect the following information regarding visitors: IP address, information regarding which pages are accessed and where they were accessed from (e.g. specific search engines). It will also collect voluntary data such as names, contact telephone numbers, email addresses and personal details when provided.

Contact Details

Where voluntarily data is supplied by visitors, this is intended for the sole use of Tracey Billham as a practitioner. If you choose to provide your contact data, Tracey Billham will use these details to respond to you directly and provide you with information you have requested, alongside any additional information believed to be relevant. Tracey Billham may also contact you about future services.

Contact data held will not be passed on or transferred to third parties, except where your permission is needed or under extenuating circumstances where Tracey Billham is legally required to do so.

If your contact details change, or you wish to send further information, please contact Tracey Billham through the site or directly.

Protection of Data

Tracey Billham is committed to taking reasonable steps to protect the individual identifying information that you provide. Once your data is received, Tracey Billham will make best efforts to ensure its security. If you wish to obtain details of the information held on you, please contact Tracey Billham

Further Information

If you want to find out in more detail about new general data protection regulation as of 25th May 2018, please go to the Information Commissioners Office (ICO) website

Changes to Privacy Policy

Changes to the Privacy Policy will be made on this page.